UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

VINOD CHANDRASHEKM
PATWARDHAN,

Defendant.

Case No. ED CR 08-00172 VAP
[Motion filed on May 29,
2009]

ORDER DENYING MOTION FOR JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL AND/OR NEW TRIAL

Defendant's Motion for Judgment of Acquittal and/or New Trial came before the Court for hearing on June 29, 2009. After reviewing and considering all papers filed in support of, and in opposition to, the Motion, as well as the arguments advanced by counsel at the hearing, the Court DENIES the Motion.

I. BACKGROUND

Defendant Vinod Patwardhan was tried before a jury on the first six counts in the Second Superseding Indictment in this Court from April 28, 2009 through May 7, 2009; the jury returned a guilty verdict on all six counts on May 8, 2009.<sup>1</sup>

After the Government rested its case, Defendant brought a Motion for Acquittal pursuant to Rule 29 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure. The Court denied the Motion on May 8, 2009, before the jury returned its verdict.

<sup>1</sup> Count One charged Defendant with Conspiracy to Introduce into Interstate Commerce Drugs That Are Misbranded, in Violation of Title 21 U.S.C. §§ 331(a), 333(a)(2), 352(c) & 352 (f)(1) (Violation of 18 U.S.C. § 371); Count Two charged him with Introducing and Delivering Misbranding Drugs into Interstate Commerce, Specifically 23 Vials of Farmorubicina, 50 MG (Violation of 21 U.S.C. §§ 331(a), 333(a)(2), 352(c) & 352(f)(1)); Count Three Charged him with Introducing and Delivering Misbranded Drugs into Interstate Commerce, Specifically 100 Vials Of Docetax, 80 MG (Violation of 21 U.S.C. §§ 331(a), 333(a)(2), 352(c) & 352(f)(1)); Counts Four, Five and Six charged Fraudulently and Knowingly Importing or Causing the Importation of Drugs from India into the United States (violation of 18 U.S.C. § 545); and Counts Seven and Eight sought forfeiture of Defendant's assets.

1 On May 29, 2009, Defendant filed a "Motion for 2 Judgment of Acquittal and/or New Trial."<sup>2</sup> The Government
3 filed Opposition on June 15, 2009. Defendant filed a 4 Reply on June 22, 2009.

6 II. MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

7 Defendant brings his Motion for New Trial on the 8 following grounds: (1) the Court's mid-trial decision
9 regarding the admissibility of Patrick Egan's testimony
10 resulted in undue prejudice to Defendant; and (2) Agent
11 Leitner's improper comment violated Defendant's Fifth
12 Amendment right. (See Mot. at 8-17, 26-28.)

14 A. Legal Standard

15 Rule 33(a) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure
16 ("Rule 33(a)") provides that "[u]pon the defendant's 17 motion, the court may vacate any judgment and grant a new 18 trial if the interest of justice so requires." A motion
19 for a new trial is granted at the discretion of the trial 20 court and only in "exceptional cases in which the 21 evidence preponderates heavily against the verdict."
22 United States v. Pimentel, 654 F.2d 538, 545 (9th Cir.
23 1981).

26 <sup>2</sup> The Motion was timely filed because the Court 27 granted Defendant an extension of time, beyond the seven 28 day deadlines set forth in Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure 29(c)(1) (motion for acquittal) and 33(b)(2) (motion for new trial).

1 A trial court may sustain a verdict if "'viewing the 2 evidence in the light most favorable to the prosecution,
3 any rational trier of fact could have found the essential
4 elements of the crime beyond a reasonable doubt.'" United States v. Lyons, 454 F.3d 968, 971 (9th Cir. 2006)
5 (emphasis in original) (quoting Jackson v. Virginia, 443 6 U.S. 307, 319 (1979)).

8 9 B. Discussion

10 1. Admissibility of Patrick Egan's Testimony

11 At a pretrial hearing, the Court denied the 12 Government's Motion in Limine to exclude defense expert 13 Patrick Egan from testifying. (See April 22, 2009 14 Order.) The defense sought to have Mr. Egan testify to 15 the following: (1) various cities and states imported 16 foreign-labeled drugs; (2) the Attorney General can 17 create exemptions for travelers carrying drugs with them
18 when entering the country; (3) the Food and Drug 19 Administration ("FDA") and Drug and Enforcement Agency 20 ("DEA") have issued public statements regarding the 21 prescription drugs that travelers can bring into the 22 country; (4) confusion among the general public regarding 23 the importation of prescription drugs for personal use 24 and the FDA and DEA have called for greater clarity on 25 the issue; and (5) the FDA's creation of policies for its 26 inspectors to follow with respect to the importation by 27
28

1 travelers of small amounts of prescription drugs. (Id.
2 at 3.)

4 In its Motion in Limine ruling, the Court found Mr.
5 Egan's proffered testimony would be relevant to the 6 following issues: (1) whether the Defendant lacked intent 7 to defraud; and (2) the purported reasonableness of 8 Defendant's belief that he acted lawfully. (Id.)

10 On May 3, 2009, the Government brought a "Motion for 11 Reconsideration of the Court's Prior Order Permitting
12 Testimony of Defendant's Expert Witness Patrick Egan," 13 which the Defendant opposed. Outside the presence of the 14 jury, the Court heard argument on the Motion and ruled 15 that Mr. Egan could not testify until the defense laid 16 sufficient foundation, i.e., through the Defendant's own 17 testimony or otherwise, that he was confused about the 18 FDA's prescription drug importation policy and about the 19 wrongfulness of his actions. The defense objected that 20 this constituted a change in the Court's earlier ruling, 21 and that circumstantial evidence regarding the manner of 22 Defendant's importation of the drugs sufficed as 23 foundation for the expert's testimony.

24

25 As it stated on the record during the hearing, the 26 Court's ruling during trial on the admissibility of 27 Egan's testimony was not a change from its prior ruling.

28

1 Rather, it simply reiterated the rule that any evidence
2 must be supported with sufficient foundation before it 3 may be admitted and published to the jury, whether 4 testimonial or documentary. See Fed. R. Evid. 402; 5 LuMetta v. U.S. Robotics, Inc., 824, F.2d 768, 771 (9th 6 Cir. 1987). The Court found the evidence cited by 7 defense counsel did not provide sufficient foundation for 8 Egan's testimony; there was no connection between the 9 proffered testimony regarding general confusion of the 10 public as to the FDA's importation policy of prescription 11 drugs for personal use and the Defendant's acts of 12 importing, or directing others to import, prescription 13 drugs to distribute to his patients and not for personal 14 use. Accordingly, the Court ruled, lacking the requisite 15 foundation (in the form of Defendant's testimony, for 16 example), that the Defendant held the belief he was 17 acting lawfully, consistent with the general public's 18 confusion regarding the legality of importing 19 prescription drugs for personal use, Egan's testimony was 20 inadmissible.

21

22 In the Motion for a New Trial, Defendant argues the 23 Court's ruling entitles him to a new trial for two 24 reasons: (1) the Court was incorrect in ruling the 25 Defendant must testify before Mr. Egan's expert testimony
26 could be introduced; and (2) Defendant was prejudiced 27 unduly because defense counsel, relying on the Court's 28

1 Motion in Limine ruling, previewed Mr. Egan's testimony 2 to the jury during his opening statement but was unable 3 to deliver on his promise that Egan would testify. (See 4 Mot. at 8-9.)

6 As to his first reason, Defendant argues United 7 States v. Frantz, 2004 WL 5642909 (C.D. Cal. April 23, 8 2004), authored by the Honorable Margaret M. Morrow of 9 this Court, shows the impropriety of the Court's 10 requirement that the Defendant testify before Mr. Egan 11 could testify. The Court notes Defendant opposed the 12 Government's Motion for Reconsideration by arguing the 13 applicability of this case; the Court previously 14 distinguished this case at the hearing on the Motion for 15 Reconsideration. Frantz is a tax fraud case with little 16 factual similarity to this case. Although the Frantz 17 Court did not require the defendant to testify to lay 18 sufficient foundation for his expert's testimony, it held 19 the defense could lay sufficient foundation through other 20 circumstantial evidence.

21
22 Here, the defense proffered the circumstantial 23 evidence of Defendant's belief as to the legality of his 24 actions, i.e., Defendant's own testimony about his 25 beliefs, to satisfy Federal Rule of Evidence 402's 26 foundation requirements for Mr. Egan's testimony. The 27 Court abides by its ruling on this issue for the reasons 28

1 stated above and on the record during the hearing on the 2 Motion to Reconsider.

4 Defendant's second basis, that he suffered unfair
5 prejudice because his lawyer described Egan's testimony
6 during his opening statements but the Court barred him 7 from presenting the witness's testimony, lacks merit as 8 well. At the hearing on this issue during trial, the 9 defense framed this argument as an objection under 10 Federal Rule of Evidence 403, contending Defendant would 11 be unfairly prejudiced if not allowed to present Egan's 12 testimony.

14 Rule 403, however, only allows the exclusion of 15 relevant evidence when the danger of, inter alia, unfair
16 prejudice outweighs its probative value. The defense 17 here was not seeking to exclude evidence, but rather 18 admit it. As the Court pointed out at the hearing, 19 balancing the interests at stake here, i.e., (1) the 20 purported prejudice to Defendant because he was unable to 21 offer the testimony of his expert witness after 22 describing it to the jury during opening statement, 23 balanced against (2) the impropriety of permitting a 24 witness whose testimony lacked proper foundation to 25 testify, did not favor the defense.

26

27

28

1 Defendant next argues his counsel's promise in 2 opening statement of Egan's testimony, and subsequent 3 inability to deliver it, constitutes grounds for a new 4 trial. (See Mot. at 13 ("Courts have repeatedly held 5 that a defense attorney's failure to present the promised 6 testimony of an important witness constitutes conduct 7 that is so profoundly prejudicial to the criminal 8 defendant that it warrants reversal or vacation of a 9 conviction.")) In support of his argument, Defendant
10 relies on several cases, to no avail. (See Mot. at 13-17 11 (citing Ouber v. Guarino, 293 F.3d 19 (1st Cir. 2002); 12 States v. Washington, 219 F.3d 620 (7th Cir. 2000);
13 Harris v. Reed, 894 F.2d 871 (7th Cir. 1990); Anderson v.
14 Butler, 858 F.2d 16 (1st Cir. 1998); United States v.
15 Gonzalez-Maldonado, 115 F.3d 9 (1st Cir. 1997)).)

16
17 First, most of Defendant's cited cases arise in the 18 context of habeas corpus petitions granted because of 19 ineffective assistance of trial counsel, a completely 20 different legal question than that posed here. See, 21 e.g., Ouber, 293 F.3d at 33-34; Washington, 219 F.3d at 22 634; Harris, 894 F.2d at 879; Anderson, 858 F.2d at 17.
23 Furthermore, most of Defendant's cases are 24 distinguishable factually; there, the defense counsel
25 failed, either out of incompetence or negligence, to call 26 "key" witnesses they described during opening statements 27 to the jury. Id. Defense counsel here did not fail to 28

1 call Dr. Egan; he attempted to do so but was not allowed,
2 as the evidentiary requirements for the witness's
3 testimony had not been satisfied.

5 Defendant relies in particular on the First Circuit's 6 decision in Gonzalez-Maldonado. That case, too, is 7 distinguishable from ours. There, the district court 8 stated it would allow an expert to testify about the 9 mental illness of the defendant's co-conspirator, Julio 10 Robles-Torres ("Robles"), who the court had found 11 incompetent to testify at trial. 115 F.3d at 14. In 12 lieu of Robles's testimony, the Government planned to 13 introduce taped conversations between the defendant and 14 Robles in its case-in-chief as evidence of the 15 conspiracy. Id. at 13-14. The Robles tapes constituted 16 key evidence of the defendants' guilt in the government's 17 case. Id. at 16.

18
19 During opening statements, defense counsel and 20 counsel for the government mentioned anticipated
21 testimony regarding Robles's mental state. Id. at 14.
22 Specifically, defense counsel told the jury:

23 "The expert selected by this Court, Dr. Fumero, 24 selected by this Court, will come here, will sit 25 there and will testify that during this conspiracy
26 ... Mr. Julio Robles-Torres was mentally insane.
27 Therefore, you cannot trust him. You cannot put much 28

1 attention to what he's saying because he 2 exaggerates."

3 Id. After the government rested its case, the district 4 court "reconsidered its earlier decision and decided that 5 Dr. Fumero would not be allowed to testify because the 6 testimony would only go to the issue of Robles'[s]
7 competency as a witness, which is a question for the 8 court ...." Id.

10 On appeal, the First Circuit found it reversed the 11 conviction. It held Dr. Fumero's testimony admissible
12 and relevant to Robles's credibility, and the defendant 13 had suffered prejudice as a matter of law when the 14 district court reconsidered its ruling on the expert's 15 ability to testify after both counsel mentioned his 16 testimony in their opening statements. Id. at 15-16.
17 Emphasizing the critical nature of Dr. Fumero's
18 testimony, the First Circuit explained:

19 "A defendant's opening statement prepares the jury to 20 hear his case. If the defense fails to produce 21 promised expert testimony that is critical to the 22 defense strategy, a danger arises that the jury will 23 presume that the expert is unwilling to testify and 24 the defense is flawed. That the defendant should 25 suffer this presumption because he relied on a prior 26 ruling of the trial court that the same court later 27 reversed, rather than because of poor judgment on the 28

1 part of his own counsel, in no way changes the fact
2 that the presumption formed in the minds of the jury
3 is prejudicial.... [W]e find that promising to admit 4 this important evidence and then failing to produce 5 it is prejudicial as a matter of law in the 6 circumstances of this case.... [W]e find that denying 7 defendants the opportunity to have Dr. Fumero
8 testify, in light of the fact that the court's 9 decision on the matter led defense counsel, in their 10 opening remarks, to promise the expert's testimony to 11 the jury, was reversible error."

12 Id. at 15 (emphasis added).
13

14 An examination of the record here reveals that by 15 contrast defense counsel only briefly mentioned Patrick
16 Egan and his anticipated testimony during opening 17 statement, as part of what he called the "general
18 background." His description consumed but eleven lines
19 of the twenty-three transcribed pages of the defense's 20 opening statement:

21 "You will hear from an expert on this issue [of the 22 FDA's Personal Importation Policy], a man by the name
23 of Patrick Egan. Mr. Egan is a lawyer and he has a 24 lot of experience dealing with this area of 25 importations of drugs and unapproved labeling and 26 things like that. He's testified in the United 27 States Congress about it. And Mr. Egan will testify, 28

1 he will tell you that various government agencies
2 have complained that there's a lot of confusion out 3 there in the public, among the public, about whether 4 it's permitted for a traveler to bring medicine and 5 under what circumstances it is permitted for a 6 traveler to bring medicine from a foreign country
7 into the United States."

9 Before and after this short reference to Dr. Egan, 10 Defendant's lawyer covered many other subjects in his 11 opening statement, including:

- 12 • Defendant's national origin, medical training, 13 and years of experience as a doctor;
- 14 • Some details about Defendant's medical practice 15 in Upland, California and his specialization in 16 internal medicine and oncology;
- 17 • Defendant's dedication to his patients and his 18 staff;
- 19 • Defendant's efforts to stay current in his 20 profession;
- 21 • Defendant's general record-keeping practice in 22 his office;
- 23 • Defendant's frequent travel to India to visit 24 his parents and his purchase of drugs there to 25 bring back to the U.S. to use in his practice;

- 1 • Jessica Young's expected testimony about
- 2 importing drugs from Honduras at the direction
- 3 of Defendant;
- 4 • Defendant's procedure for stocking the drugs in
- 5 his office, administering them to his patients,
- 6 and generating invoices for the drugs he
- 7 imported;
- 8 • Defendant's administration of the drugs he
- 9 imported to his patients;
- 10 • An overview of the charges against Defendant;
- 11 • The time line of events charged in the
- 12 Indictment;
- 13 • A description of the elements of "acting with
- 14 intent to defraud or mislead";
- 15 • The defense's contention that the charges were
- 16 about the labeling on the drugs, not the drugs
- 17 themselves;
- 18 • The appearance of the labeling on some of the
- 19 drugs imported by Defendant;
- 20 • Defendant's belief that his actions were legal;
- 21 • Defendant's admission that he imported drugs
- 22 into the United States;
- 23 • The manner in which Defendant imported the drugs
- 24 in his luggage;
- 25 • Specific instances of Defendant's interaction
- 26 with Customs agents;
- 27
- 28

- 1 • Defendant's interaction with Customs agents on
- 2 April 4, 2002;
- 3 • Defendant's interaction with Customs on April 3,
- 4 2005;
- 5 • The expected testimony of United States Customs
- 6 Service Agent Cuevas, who interacted with
- 7 Defendant on April 3, 2005;
- 8 • The FDA policy regarding importing drugs for
- 9 personal use;
- 10 • United States Customs agents' discretion when
- 11 enforcing the FDA policy;
- 12 • The policy of the United States Customs Service
- 13 on retention of declaration forms filled out by
- 14 travelers;
- 15 • The difference between brand names for drugs and
- 16 their corresponding chemical names;
- 17 • Medicare's reimbursement policy and practice for
- 18 drugs administered by doctors to their patients;
- 19 and
- 20 • Defendant's failure to destroy documents or the
- 21 imported drugs before or after the FDA searched
- 22 his office on July 30, 2008.

23

24 In other words, viewing the reference to Dr. Egan's

25 testimony in the context of the entire opening statement,

26 it was a very brief mention amongst dozens of other

27 subjects. In contrast to Gonzalez-Maldonado, this is not

28

1 a case where the government was able to present its 2 critical witness's testimony through taped evidence but 3 the defendant was unable to cross-examine him or call a 4 witness to question his credibility. Instead, the 5 defense seeks admission of expert testimony unsupported
6 by foundation. In Gonzalez-Maldonado, Dr. Fumero's
7 testimony weighed on the credibility of Robles's recorded 8 statements; here, Egan's testimony could not show the 9 reasonableness of Defendant's actions, as Defendant 10 argues, because there was no link between the 11 reasonableness of a mistaken belief about the FDA's 12 personal importation policy for prescription drugs and 13 Defendant's actions in this case.

14
15 Furthermore, as the Government points out in its 16 Opposition, the Court's rulings on Motions in Limine are 17 not binding on the Court throughout the trial. (See 18 Opp'n at 8 (citing Ohler v. United States, 529 U.S. 753, 19 758 n. 3 (2000) and Luce v. United States, 469 U.S. 38, 20 41-42 (1984)). As the Supreme Court noted in Luce, 21 where, as here, the defendant chose not to testify at 22 trial:

23 "Any possible harm flowing from a district court's in 24 limine ruling permitting impeachment by a prior 25 conviction is wholly speculative. The ruling is 26 subject to change when the case unfolds, particularly 27 if the actual testimony differs from what was 28

1 contained in the defendant's proffer. Indeed even if 2 nothing unexpected happens at trial, the district 3 judge is free, in the exercise of sound judicial 4 discretion, to alter a previous in limine ruling."

5 Id.

7 Finally, the purported prejudice to Defendant by 8 being unable to deliver his expert witness was cured by 9 the following: (1) the Court gave the Ninth Circuit Model 10 Criminal Jury Instruction No. 3.7 to the jury, explaining 11 that statements by counsel are not evidence; and (2) the 12 Court barred the Government from arguing defense counsel
13 "broke its promise" by failing to introduce Egan's
14 testimony and, in fact, no witness or lawyer mentioned 15 Egan in front of the jury after defense counsel made the 16 aforementioned reference during his opening statement.

17
18 Accordingly, the Court's decision to bar Dr. Egan
19 from testifying does not constitute sufficient grounds
20 for the Court to grant Defendant's Motion for New Trial.

21 22 2. Agent Leitner's Testimony

23 Agent Leitner, a Special Agent with the FDA Office of 24 Criminal Investigations, testified during the 25 Government's case about an interview he conducted of Dr.
26 Patwardhan. On direct examination, the agent testified
27 that when interviewed during the search of his office 28

1 premises, Defendant said "words to the effect that . . .
2 I am less than a man or I'm not a man." When asked on 3 redirect examination why he remembered that statement by 4 Defendant, Agent Leitner testified as follows:

5 Answer: It was, I mean, the defendant is sitting 6 right there. He knows full well that he 7 made that comment and it was stated. We 8 did talk about that.

10 The defense objected immediately; the Court sustained 11 the objection and instructed the jury to disregard the 12 agent's answer. At the end of the trial when the Court 13 instructed the jury on the applicable law, the Court gave 14 the Ninth Circuit Model Criminal Jury Instruction No. 3.3
15 about Defendant's decision not to testify: "A defendant 16 in a criminal case has a constitutional right not to 17 testify. No presumption of guilt may be raised, and no 18 inference of any kind may be drawn, from the fact that 19 the defendant did not testify."
20

21 Defendant now argues Agent Leitner's statement 22 violated his Fifth Amendment right not to testify at 23 trial, i.e., that the "Fifth Amendment prohibits the 24 prosecution from commenting on a defendant's decision not 25 to testify." (See Mot. at 26 (citing Lincoln v. Sunn, 26 807 F.2d 805, 809 (9th Cir. 1987)).) Defendant argues 27 Agent Leitner's comment was so prejudicial that it could 28

1 not be cured by the Court's immediate instruction to the 2 jury to disregard the comment or the jury instruction
3 about Defendant's Fifth Amendment right not to testify.
4 (Id.)

6 The Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment
7 prohibits a prosecutor from commenting on the defendant's
8 decision not to testify. See Griffin v. California, 380
9 U.S. 609, 615 (1965). A direct comment about the 10 defendant's failure to testify always violates Griffin; a 11 prosecutor's indirect comment violates Griffin "'if it is 12 manifestly intended to call attention to the defendant's 13 failure to testify or is of such a character that the 14 jury would naturally and necessarily take it to be a 15 comment on the failure to testify.'" Hovey v. Ayers, 458 16 F.3d 892, 912 (9th Cir. 2006) (quoting Lincoln v. Sunn, 17 808 F.2d at 809).

18
19 In Hovey, the Ninth Circuit found a prosecutor's 20 indirect comment that the defendant never explained his 21 actions to the jury or contradicted testimony of other 22 witnesses violated Griffin. 458 F.3d at 912. The Ninth 23 Circuit found the error harmless, however because it was 24 an isolated comment, the government did not stress to the 25 jury an inference of guilt from the defendant's silence, 26 and there was sufficient evidence to support the 27 defendant's conviction. Id.

1 Here, Agent Leitner mentioned Defendant's ability to 2 explain what he said during Defendant's interview with 3 Agent Leitner; thus, the statement constituted, at most, 4 an indirect reference to Defendant's choice not to 5 testify at trial, i.e., Defendant chose not to explain 6 his "I'm not a man" statement to the jury. Even if this 7 violated Griffin, under Hovey, any error was harmless:
8 (1) this was a single comment with an immediate, 9 sustained objection, and a curative instruction to the 10 jury with no further mention of or reference to the 11 statement; (2) the Government did not stress any 12 inference of guilt from Defendant's decision not to 13 testify; and (3) there was sufficient evidence to support 14 the conviction, as discussed in detail below.

15
16 Furthermore, Defendant's argument is not persuasive
17 for an additional reason. In the case law described 18 above and relied upon by Defendant, the improper comment
19 or argument was made by the prosecutor; here, the comment
20 was made by a government witness, a federal law 21 enforcement officer, but not the attorney for the 22 Government.

23
24 Accordingly, the Court finds Agent Leitner's comment 25 not a sufficient basis upon which to grant the Motion for 26 New Trial.

1 Defendant argues an additional basis for his Motion
2 for New Trial, that the Government failed to present any 3 evidence to support the essential elements of the 4 misbranding offense which necessitates a new trial on the 5 smuggling counts. The Court discusses this basis below, 6 in Section III(B)(3).

7 8 III. MOTION FOR JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL

9 Defendant Dr. Patwardhan cites the following grounds
10 for his Motion for Acquittal: (1) "the government 11 introduced no evidence of a nexus between the 12 introduction into interstate commerce of foreign 13 medicines and the alleged misbranding violations"; and 14 (2) "the government never introduced evidence 15 establishing the requisite nexus between the alleged 16 fraud and the alleged misbranding violations" or 17 "evidence of materiality." (See Mot. at 18-25.)
18

19 A. Legal Standard

20 Rule 29(c) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure
21 ("Rule 29(c)") permits a defendant to move for a judgment
22 of acquittal after a guilty verdict if the evidence 23 adduced at trial was insufficient to sustain a 24 conviction. "'There is sufficient evidence to support a 25 conviction if, viewing the evidence in the light most 26 favorable to the prosecution, any rational trier of fact 27 could have found the essential elements of the offense[]"
28

1 charged beyond a reasonable doubt.' In conducting this 2 review, '[the Court is] powerless to question a jury's
3 assessment of witnesses' credibility,' and 'must presume
4 ... that the trier of fact resolved any ... conflict[ing
5 inferences] in favor of the prosecution.'" United States
6 v. Johnson, 229 F.3d 891, 893 (9th Cir. 2000) (citing 7 United States v. Hinton, 222 F.3d 664, 669 (9th Cir.
8 2000); see also United States v. Croft, 124 F.3d 1109, 9 1125 (9th Cir. 1997).

10 11 B. Discussion

12 1. United States v. Evers

13 Defendant argues the Government failed to prove all 14 elements of the misbranding charges. In support of this 15 basis for the Motion for Judgment of Acquittal, Defendant
16 relies entirely on a Fifth Circuit case, United States v.
17 Evers, 643 F.2d 1043 (5th Cir. 1981).

18
19 In Evers, the Fifth Circuit held the doctor-defendant 20 did not misbrand the medicines he administered to his 21 patients for a non-FDA-approved use because he did not 22 distribute the drugs to other doctors. (See Mot. at 18-23 19.) According to Defendant, Evers stands for the 24 principle that the Government could not prove his guilt 25 of the misbranding Counts because he did not distribute 26 the prescription drugs he imported to other physicians.
27 (See Mot. at 18-20.)

1 The Court declines to apply the holding of Evers here
2 for several reasons.

4 First, in Evers, the defendant was not charged under 5 the same sections of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act
6 ("FD&C Act") as the sections under which Defendant
7 Patwardhan was charged. In seeking to enjoin Dr. Evers' 8 practice of misbranding prescription drugs, the 9 government argued Dr. Evers had violated Title 21 of the 10 United States Code, Sections 331(k)<sup>3</sup> ("Section 331(k)")
11 and 352(f)(1)<sup>4</sup> ("Section 352(f)(1)"). Id. at 1046.
12 Here, the grand jury charged Dr. Patwardhan with 13 violating Title 21 of the United States Code, Sections
14 331(a)<sup>5</sup> ("Section 331(a)"), 333(a)(2)<sup>6</sup> ("Section 15 333(a)(2)"), 352(c)<sup>7</sup> ("Section 352(c)"), and 352(f)(1).

16
17 <sup>3</sup> This section states the following act is prohibited
18 under the FD&C Act: "(k) The alteration, mutilation, 19 destruction, obliteration, or removal of the whole or any 20 part of the labeling of, or the doing of any other act 21 with respect to, a food, drug, device, or cosmetic, if such act is done while such article is held for sale (whether or not the first sale) after shipment in interstate commerce and results in such article being adulterated or misbranded."

22 <sup>4</sup> This section requires a label or labeling to include "(1) adequate directions for use."

23 <sup>5</sup> This section of the FD&C Act prohibits: "The 24 introduction or delivery for introduction into interstate 25 commerce of any food, drug, device, or cosmetic that is adulterated or misbranded."

26 <sup>6</sup> This section of the FD&C Act provides the penalties for violations of the Act.

27 <sup>7</sup> This section of the FD&C Act states a drug or 28 (continued...)

1 (See Second Superseding Indictment.) The only common
2 alleged violation by Dr. Evers and Defendant Patwardhan
3 was Section 352(f)(1).

5 Assuming, arguendo, Evers applies to Section
6 352(f)(1), mandating the Government prove the doctor-
7 defendant distributed prescription drugs to other doctors
8 to be found guilty, Evers does not require acquittal
9 here. As the Government argues in Opposition, the Second 10 Superseding Indictment gave two alternative bases for Dr.
11 Patwardhan's misbranding conviction: (1) violation of 12 352(f)(1) because the labeling on the drugs he imported 13 lacked adequate directions for use; and (2) violation of 14 352(c) because the "label or labeling was not in such 15 terms as to render them likely to be read and understood 16 by the ordinary individual under customary conditions of 17 purchase and use."<sup>8</sup> (Second Superseding Indictment at 18 14; Opp'n at 11-12, n.5) Although the Government did not 19 prove Dr. Patwardhan distributed the drugs to other

20
21 <sup>7</sup>(...continued)
22 device is misbranded if: "(c) Prominence of information
23 on label. If any word, statement, or other information 24 required by or under authority of this chapter to appear 25 on the label or labeling is not prominently placed 26 thereon with such conspicuousness (as compared with other words, statements, designs, or devices, in the labeling) and in such terms as to render it likely to be read and understood by the ordinary individual under customary conditions of purchase and use."

27 <sup>8</sup> The Verdict Form for Counts Two and Three did not 28 require the jury to select which basis it chose to establish Defendant's guilt.

1 doctors, the jury's conviction of Dr. Patwardhan on these 2 Counts remains supported; pursuant to Section 352(c), the 3 jury could have found Dr. Patwardhan guilty because the 4 jurors found the label or labeling on the drugs Dr.
5 Patwardhan imported and administered to his patients was 6 not "in such terms as to render it likely to be read and 7 understood by the ordinary individual under customary 8 conditions of purchase and use." 21 U.S.C. § 352(c).

10 Defendant argues Evers should be applied to Section 11 352(c) because "by law only physicians (or those acting 12 under their supervision) can use prescription drugs, and 13 thus any statutory duty imposed by Section 352(c) to have 14 labeling that is comprehensible under 'customary 15 conditions of purchase and use' is owed to physicians 16 alone and can only be violated by distribution or 17 intended distribution to physicians." (Reply at 13.)

18 19 Such an interpretation ignores the plain language of 20 the statute, which uses the term "ordinary individual," 21 not "ordinary physician." See Boise Cascade Corp. v.
22 U.S. E.P.A., 942 F.2d 1427, 1432 (9th Cir. 1991) ("Under 23 accepted canons of statutory interpretation, we must 24 interpret statutes as a whole, giving effect to each word 25 and making every effort not to interpret a provision in a 26 manner that renders other provisions of the same statute 27 inconsistent, meaningless, or superfluous."). Section

1 352(c) establishes a requirement that label or labeling
2 on prescription drugs must be comprehensible by ordinary 3 persons, including but not limited to doctors, when they 4 purchase and use the products. See Avendano-Ramirez v.
5 Ashcroft, 365 F.3d 813, 816 (9th Cir. 2004) ("Canons of 6 statutory construction dictate that if the language of a 7 statute is clear, we look no further than that language
8 in determining the statute's meaning.")

10 Lastly, the factual distinctions between Evers and 11 this case are many. The government charged Evers with 12 advertising treatment for a certain medical condition 13 with FDA-approved drugs but a non-FDA approved use; the 14 Fifth Circuit held the government had not proven its case
15 because it had not shown Dr. Evers distributed the drugs
16 to other doctors, but only distributed and administered
17 the drugs to his patients. Evers, 643 F.2d at 1053.

18
19 Here, of course, the Government charged Defendant 20 with distributing non-FDA approved drugs; the evidence at 21 trial established he distributed such medicines to his 22 patients, and then charged them and their insurance
23 carriers for the FDA-approved version.

24
25 Also, Evers obtained the FDA-approved drugs through 26 ordinary distribution chains from pharmaceutical 27 manufacturers, whereas Dr. Patwardhan introduced the non-28

1 FDA-approved drugs into interstate commerce by importing 2 them into the country himself or through his staff. Id.
3 at 1049-50. Lastly, unlike Dr. Evers, Dr. Patwardhan was 4 not advocating to other doctors a new treatment about 5 non-approved uses for FDA-approved drugs; rather, Dr.
6 Patwardhan administered non-FDA-approved drugs to his 7 patients without their knowledge and profited from the 8 venture. Id. at 1053, n. 16.

9 10 2. Dr. Patwardhan's Intent to Defraud or Mislead

11 Next, Defendant argues there was insufficient 12 evidence of his purported intent to defraud or mislead to 13 sustain his conviction for misbranding. (Mot. at 20-24.)
14 Specifically, he argues the Government failed to prove a 15 nexus between the particular misbranding violations and 16 Defendant's purported intent to defraud or show that his 17 misrepresentations were material. (Id. (citing United 18 States v. Geborde, 278 F.3d 926, 930 (9th Cir. 2002); 19 United States v. Arlen, 947 F.2d 139, 143 (5th Cir.
20 1991); United States v. Mitcheltree, 940 F.2d 1329, 1349-21 50 (10th Cir. 1991).)

22
23 Assuming, arguendo, the Government was required to 24 prove Defendant specifically intended to defraud or 25 mislead his patients as to adequacy of directions for use
26 of the drugs or as to the comprehensibility of the labels
27 or labeling on the drugs, the Government met its burden
28

1 of proof. See Mitcheltree, 940 F.2d at 1349-50. During 2 trial, Kathy Walton testified that she contacted 3 Defendant's office to inquire as to the name of one of 4 the drugs she obtained for her mother's treatment because 5 she did not recognize it. Defendant's employees
6 testified that, following Ms. Walton's inquiry, Defendant 7 was upset and restricted his employees from sending 8 prescription drugs home with his patients, for fear they 9 would ask more questions. This was evidence of 10 Defendant's intent to mislead his patients as to the 11 comprehensibility of the label or labeling of the drugs 12 he administered to them, plus proof that his intent to 13 defraud or mislead was connected directly to the 14 comprehensibility of the label or labeling on the drugs.
15 In addition, Ms. Walton's testimony showed her reliance 16 on the comprehensibility of the labeling on her mother's 17 prescription drugs that she obtained from Defendant.<sup>9</sup>
18 See United States v. Nguyen, 565 F.3d 668 (9th Cir. 2009)
19 (materiality is an undisputed element of felony 20 misbranding); United States v. Watkins, 278 F.3d 961, 969
21 (9th Cir. 2002) (same).

22
23 Furthermore, as the Government argues, there was 24 evidence at trial that Defendant and "his co-conspirators
25

---

26 <sup>9</sup> Defense counsel pointed out at the hearing that 27 Defendant was not charged with misbranding the drug given 28 to Kathy Walton's mother. Defense counsel was correct; this evidence, however, remains relevant to the issue of Defendant's intent to defraud or mislead.

1 made extensive efforts to avoid detection, including 2 hiding drugs from auditors, misleading patients about 3 where the drugs came from, [after the Kathy Walton
4 incident] refusing to send the drugs home with patients
5 for fear that the patients would start asking question,
6 and lying to Medicare about the drugs." (Opp'n at 16.)
7 Taken together, that evidence showed Defendant's specific 8 intent to defraud or mislead his patients as to the 9 comprehensibility of the label or labeling on the drugs
10 and as to adequacy of the directions for use on the 11 drugs.

13 Additional evidence of Defendant's intent to defraud
14 and mislead was as follows: (1) Defendant never declared
15 the drugs on his Customs forms; (2) Defendant lied to a 16 Customs inspector about how long he had been traveling in 17 India; (3) Defendant directed Velma Yep, a co-18 conspirator, to give drugs she purchased abroad at his 19 direction to Jessica Young, another co-conspirator, and 20 "no one else;" (4) Defendant asked Jessica Young to ask a 21 doctor friend to buy drugs in India and not to mention 22 that Defendant asked her to do so; (5) Defendant picked 23 up the drugs personally instead of using an international 24 courier; (6) the drugs were no longer cold when 25 Defendant's staff inventoried them at the office; and (7)
26 Defendant is an educated medical doctor who is familiar

1 with the FDA, its regulation of drugs, and its regulatory 2 standards. (See Opp'n at 21-22.)

4 Contrary to Defendant's arguments, the Government
5 presented sufficient evidence to support the conviction 6 on the misbranding Counts. Viewing the evidence in the 7 light most favorable to the Government, the Court finds a 8 rational trier of fact would have convicted Defendant Dr.
9 Patwardhan of the misbranding Counts; the Court DENIES 10 the Motion for Judgment of Acquittal on the misbranding 11 Counts.

12 13 3. Motion for New Trial on Smuggling Counts

14 According to Defendant, because the Government could 15 not prove his guilt of the misbranding Counts, the Court
16 should also grant him a new trial on the smuggling Counts 17 because the jury may have found him guilty of the 18 smuggling Counts improperly, based on the misbranding
19 Counts. (Mot. at 26.) As the Court has found sufficient 20 evidence supports Defendant's conviction on the 21 misbranding Counts, the Court finds the conviction on the 22 smuggling Counts has not been undermined. (Cf. Mot. at 23 18-20.) Thus, this argument is also insufficient to 24 support Defendant's Motion for New Trial.

25 26 IV. CONCLUSION

1 Defendant fails to satisfy the burden imposed on the 2 party seeking a new trial or acquittal, i.e., to show 3 that the evidence preponderates heavily against the 4 verdict. For the foregoing reasons, the Court DENIES 5 Defendant's Motion for Judgment of Acquittal and/or New 6 Trial.
